BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF RESPONSIBILITIES: The applicant will be required to teach a broad range of freshman-level-sophomore courses of a liberal arts curriculum, ranging from basic mathematics, algebra and quantitative reasoning to calculus, statistics and math for elementary teachers. It is preferable that the successful applicant be willing to utilize streaming media for delivery for some these courses. A normal teaching load is 15-18 credit credits per semester. As this is a full-time position, scholarly activity in the discipline, as well as active engagement in shared governance, campus, institutional, and community service, is expected. Additional opportunities may exist to engage in interdisciplinary/collaborative courses, to revise developmental math courses, to seek external funding and to instruct discipline-specific or general freshman seminars.

QUALIFICATIONS: A master’s degree in Mathematics is required; Ph.D. preferred. The applicant must be able to demonstrate the ability to teach mathematics at the undergraduate level. Preference will be given to the candidate who exhibits excellence in teaching of undergraduate students of diverse population and perspectives. The applicant must have excellent written and verbal communications skills.
